SUPERVISORS MEET AND DISCUSS PROBLEMS PERTAINING TO ROADS

Are Advised As To Their Duties In Caring For Highways

USE OF GRAG IS ADVOCATED

A meeting of the County Road Supervisors was held at Washington Friday afternoon, which was well attended and which was featured by an address by G. L. Sollenberger, who is located at the county seat at present as a representative of the township bureau of the state highway department.

In his address on general laws in regard to the work of the supervisors he said that practically one-tenth of the country is in roads, and that it is the aim of the state highway department to have each road fit for travel every month in the year. He stated that one of the greatest road destroyers the supervisors had to deal with was water which was not properly drained from the roads, and which in a very short time would do serious damage to the highways.

The building of temporary bridges was discouraged by Mr. Sollenberger. He advised durable bridges, as he said they would be the cheapest in the long run. Index boards, the speaker r eminded the supervisors, are absolutely necessary and fines may be imposed from $5 to $15 if these signs are not properly placed.

The removal of loose stones from the road, the use of the road drag for dirt roads, the sutting and destruction of the Canada thistle were also advised by the speaker. The road drag, he said should be used after rains and in the early spring. If the road is properly dragged at the proper time, leaves and other matter removed from the highway the service of a good road will be extended Plans for bridges which are to be constructed in the townships should be first submitted to the state highway township bureau for inspection before they are used for work.

The matter of telephone poles interfering with traffic was next taken up. Mr. Sollenberger explained that if poles are out in the road too far it is the business of the supervisors to ask the telephone or telegraph company to have them placed differently, and if they refuse to do this to notify the state highway department which has a means of retaliation for those who refuse to obey the law.

Another clause the speaker referred to was the fact that all roads must be inspected by supervisors, once in the spring and again in the fall. The supervisors are paid for their time, and if a conveyance is necessary the expense is also met from the same source. These inspection trips must be made by the supervisors as a body and not by the individual members.

ARTISTS THINK HER THE MOST BEAUTIFUL

The world has again found "the most beautiful girl." Many great artists have passed the verdict that it is Justine Johnstone, who, up until three years ago, was a small town beauty in upper New York state. In three short years she climbed to the top in the theatrical profession. In face and figure, she represents a type of beauty which is typically American.

BUTTER PRICES ARE DECLINING

Fifty cent butter and eggs have a cheery sound to the housekeeper. While these prices may not be realized just yet, it is predicted that it will not be a great while before these figures will prevail for these commodities, which many months ago had been put on the select list of home menu and which owing to the high prices have been used with the greatest moderation.

During the past week, however, prices on both butter and eggs haxe been falling quite rapidly and on Friday the figures were 65 cents a pound for butter in Pittsburg, with a lower rate predicted for today. In the west the prices are even lower, which causes some dealers to predict that within a comparatively short time the half dollar mark will prevail. Other food products are reported as declining, smoked meats and vegetables being on the list for more moderate prices. The withdrawal of the government as a heavy purchasers and the removal of foodstuff restrictions are factors in the decline which seems to be steadily under way at this time.

FOODSTUFF RESTRICTIONS ARE OFF AFTER TODAY

Removal of all restrictions on margins of profit of foodstuffs, except cottonseed products and eggs and cancellation of most license requirements of importers and distributors beginning today were announced on Friday on authority of a proclamation signed by the President at Paris.

St. Mary's Episcopal Church Calls New Pastor

A call has been issued by the Vestry of St. Mary's Episcopal church to the Rev. Gomer D. Griffiths E. A. of Carnegie, to become its Rector.

Mr. Griffiths is an Honors Graduate of the University of Wales and a graduate of St. Michaels Theological Seminary, Llandaff, Wales. He was ordained in 1909 and served three years as assistant in St. Martin's Church, Cardiff. He was well known in South Wales and was much in demand as special preacher. He gave up a promising career in the Welsh church in response to an appeal for a Welshman of linguistic ability to study the language of the Thompson River Indians of British Columbia and to minister to them in their native tongue a thing extremely difficult for the Saxon tongue. He acquired t heir language from the old men of the tribe and ministered to them, riding the trails of the Frazerz Canyon from village to village and was known to the Indians as the "one who tells us about God in our own tongue."

He also worked as a pioneer missionary among the white people of the Similkameen Valley, building two churches and purchasing a rectory i n one year. In May 1915, he met wit ha severe accident on the trail which compelled him to give up his perilous work and return to city life. He came to the Pittsburg Diocese in 1916 to take charge of Carnegie, where working under extreme difficulties he has reorganized the parish, cleared off a heavy building debt and increased the membership fifty per cent. He is Honorary Chaplain for the Allegheny County Home and St. Barnbaas Free Home, McKeesport. We trust his ministry at Charleroi will be a long and happy one.

Charleroi Defeats Fast Canonsburg Five

The Canonsburg High School basket ball team was defeated by the Charleroi team on the floor of the high school gymnasium Friday evening by a score of 31 to 21.

Charleroi took the lead at the beginning of the first quarter and kept that position throughout the first quarter, which ended with the score of 9 to 7 in favor of thelocals. Wagner played best for Charleroi during this period.

During the second period Charleroi played a brand of ball that was puzzling to Canonsburg, the locals still holding the lead, the half ending with the score at 16 to 13 in favor of Charleroi. During the half Brown showed exceptional ability at guard.

During the third period Canonsburg rallied and tied the score, but the rally was short lived. At the end of this period the score was 19 all.

During the las t period the locals showed Canonsburg how to play the game. The final score was 31 to 21, which shows that Charleroi was playing all around the visitors, who are not slow at the game by any means. Greer and Campbell played well for the visitors, while Lowstutter and Weaver were conspicuous in the local five. The line-up and score:

Charleroi—31		Canonsburg—21
Glunt, Capt	F	Heckart
Wagner	F	Campbell
Weaver	C	Greer, Capt
Lowstuter	G	Courtley
Brown	G	Bowers

Substitutes—Hardy for Greer. Field goals, Wagner 3, Weaver 2, Glunt, Lowstuter; Heckart, Greer, Hardy. Fouls, Wagner 17 out of 23; Greer 15 out of 19, Campbell none out of 4, Hardy noneou t of 3. Referee, Doubleday of Washington.

OLD-TYPE BARGES ARE A RARITY ON THE MONONGAHELA

Were Formerly In General Use For Carrying Coal To Market

ARE SLOWLY PASSING AWAY

Old rivermen "batted" their eyes and took a second look on Friday when the steamer Sam Barnum, of the Diamond Coal & Coke Company, went down the river with five of the old-type wooden abrges loaded with 75,000 bushels of coal, averaging 15,000 bushels to each craft. This is the first coal mined and loaded for the Louisville market since before the United States entered the European war, and will be held in harbor at Pittsburg until the balance of a tow is loaded for the A. R. Budd, which is now being overhauled and refit with compound machinery. When a sufficient stage of water i s recorded at Davis Island Dam marks the coal will be started on its way down the Ohio, and old rivermen will have to hark back to former days to recall the last time such a tow was sent south.

These old-type barges were at one time very familiar crafts on the Monongahela and Ohio river, but since the shipments of coal to southern ports has practically ceased they have been put in thediscard and but few of them are now in use. The Pittsburg Coal company has a few of them which are being used in the local trade as hopper barges, while the Diamond Coal and Cokecompany, which never entirely withdrew from the lower river markets has quite a few of them, although using them but little during the past few years.

Before the United States entered the war the Diamond Company had a tow of barges loaded for southern shipment, but when the demand for coal became so acute in the Pittsburg district, the barges were placed at local hoists and unloaded for use in munition factories. However, the use of the old-type barges on the local river is becoming smaller year by year, and ultimately, like the old coal boat, which was used for the Memphis and New Orleans trade, it will be a thing of the past.

WILL MAKE NO CHANGE IN COMMUTATIONS

The railroads will make no change in commutation tickets, for the present at least, according to statements made by railroad men. It was intended to make a change with the first of the month, due to orders received from the federal administration of railroads, but it has been postponed for the present and the old style tickets will continue in vogue for the time being

TELLING US FRENCH AIMS, BILLY'S JOB

France wants the people of the United States to understand its views and aims. And it is the duty of this man to find ways and means to present them to the American public. He is Edouard de Billy, deputy French high commissioner at Washington. He says his nation will insist that Germany rebuild factories and farms destroyed during the war.

ANOTHER PLANT OF BY-PRODUCT OVENS

A new record for by-product coke oven construction is being made by the H. Koppers company in the building of the Jones & Laughlin plant in Hazelwood, which when completed will be the fourth largest in the world. The plant, which will have a capacity for carbonizing 2,000,000 tons of coal annually will be finished next May, just one year from thetime they were started. It will produce 1,300,000 tons of coke 12,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas, 16,000,00 gallons of tar, 25,00 tons of amonium sulphate and 6,000,000 gallons of benzola.

Jones & Laughlin will utilize the coke, gas and tar in their own mills. The coke will be used as fuel in the blast furnaces and the gas and tar for the same purposse in the steel mills. The amonium sulphate recovered will be sold. Sulphate is in demand as a fertilizer and the benzols as motor fuel. This plaint is located in Hazelwood.

The largest by-product coke plant in the world is that now in course of construction for the Carnegie Steel Company at Clairton. The second largest is that of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., and the t hird largest is at South Bethlehem. The greater part of the by-product plaint at Clairton is now in operation.

CODDLING SLACKERS

Some grotesque things are happening in connection with the demobilization of American soldiers. Take an everyday occurrence at Camp Funston as an instance.

The loyal soldier who has fought in France must buy his own civilian clothing when he comes out of the army. He can keep his uniform for a few months if he desires, but most men want to get back into a civilian outfit. So he is discharged without his old-time clothing allowance and spends with the clothier what he has saved from his pay.

At Camp Funston they have a large number of "conscientious objectors," and mingled with these are others, parading themselves as I. W. W., "International Socialists,' and plain disloyalists. Be it remembered that the honest "conscientious objector" is a rare bird in these camps.

These beings were drafted into the army. They wouldn't drill, they wouldn't wear a uniform, they wouldn't bathe and their uncleanliness was nauseating. They were, and are, disloyalists, traitors, many of them creatures of that Potsdam gang that is no more.

Nevertheless when these gentry are discharged from the army they are taken by a representative of the government and given a full outfit of clothing—hat, suit, shoes, socks, underwear, shirt, collar, gloves and even a necktie.

They have been drawing $30 a month army pay, the same pay that a loyal American fighting man was given. Furthermore, there is no record that any of these "objectors" even objected to drawing that $30 per month. Of course every man of them got a "dishonorable discharge, conduct bad," when they were let go. That worries them not at all. They managed to keep their precious hides out of shrapnel range while the better men died.

Our war department has done some strange things. Just what strange force, working under cover in Washington, has permitted these things, no one seems to know. Just what power it has that brought the summary discharge of a number of Funston officers because they had attempted to make these creatures keep themselves clean and obey the simplest routine has never been even partially explained. If Congress wants a subject of investigation, the delicate and tender-solicitude offered the disloyalist and conscientious objector in the army camps offers something worth investigating—The St. Louis Republic, (Democratic.)

A CALL TO YOUNG AMERICA

Five hundred thousand American boys between the ages of 16 to 21 are called by the Department of Labor to fight world famine by working on the farms of the country during the next harvest season. They are asked by Secretary of Labor Wilson to enroll in the United States Boys' Working Reserve a branch of the United States Employment Service. Extensive preparations have been made in every State it issaid, for securing the assistance of boys of high-school age in oncreasing the food production of this country in 1919. An adequate supply of farm labor must be provided in order to feed the starving in Europe as well as to produce abundance of food for ourselves. It is stated, showing that the experiment has already been tried successfully, that the enrollment and training of 200,000 boys in 1918 increased our food production enough to supply the needs of a million persons for oneyear.

Go to it, boys. This is not only a great substantial service but it may even be called a great adventure. There should be a thrill in fighting world famine as well as in fighting the Germans. Call the weeds "Huns" as you strike them down, if you are imaginative and like to do so, for you will really be continuing the service for country and the world so well begun by our young men on the firing line. To fight famine is to fight the spread of Boishivikism, the new name for the anarchy that seeks to destroy all countries, even our own. And in this work you will not only serve your country and humanity but develop your physical powers, build up the basis of lasting good health and make life, as nature intended it to be, a very physical joy.

VANISHING

Milwaukee has capitulated. The most German city in the United States will no longer teach the German language in the public schools. There has been no recent formal action in the matter. Thetongue of the Fatherland is simply vanishing, disappearing, ceasing to exist. In 1916 morethan 200 teachers were employed in the Milwaukee schools giving instructions in German. At the end of 1918 there was only one such teacher, with 400 pupils. It is true that theschool board had passed a resolution abolishing foreign language instruction, but the German classes seemed to die naturally, because with each succeeding school term, after the beginning of the war, fewer pupils elected to take the German course. The Assistant Superintendent of Schools, after a long term of service, has resigned. He was prominent in the German Alliance. He said he quit because he was "entitled to a rest." He was.

There is a moral in the news from Milwaukee. It is that public sentiment is more forcible than many persons imagine. The thought that might is always right has been disproved. In the early part of the war the people of the United States blamed the Kaiser and the War Lords of Germany for the conflict with all of its atrocities. Before it ended they were convinced that the German people were quite as guilty as the German rulers. And with this conviction came a change of feeling toward all things "made in Germany."

The vanishing German language in America is one of the results of this sentiment. There is no hate about it. The people simply do not want it. And the same thing is going to be true about articles manufactured in Germany. There will be no boycott, no organized effort, but for years to come it is going to be mighty hard to sell anything manufactured in the Fatherland. And for this the German people can thank themselves.

TOO MANY ISSUES

There is one suggestion to be made to unite conflicting issue interests. Since the Victory Loan is to be the last, it is an excellent chance to unify all issues. There are too many issues, with too many varieties of rates and privileges, to give anything like a standard quotation for Government credit. The multiplicity and diversity of issues confuse those not familiar with the money market, and tend to give a wrong impression that there are grades of government credit instead of diversty of terms. The banking condition is now so strong that conditions are favorable for a consolidated issue, with option to all present holders to exchage into it on terms open to all. If the new issue were made in serial form there would be both long and short terms to suit the wants of all takers, either investors or bankers. The Treasury already has expressed itself as favorable to the renewal of the lapsed privileges of conversion on the ground of inexperience of theholders. The idea is good in proportion that it is general, not special. Such a consolidated issue also might follow the British example of taking a low rate with taxe exemption or a higher rate without it. That would allow the takers of the loan to balance these conflicting considerations, each for himself, and on the same terms for all.—New York Times.

MORE HOUSES.

Pittsburg papers are urging builders in that city to erect more houses. The demand is greater than the supply and particularly for thesmaller houses, which are always popular with tenants. The condition which exists in this respect in Pittsburg is reflected in all other communities in the Monongahela valley. Many houses could be rented in Charleroi, were they available, as real estate agents can testify, but there seems to be a disinclination on the part of property owners to make additional investments of this character at this time.

All character of building has been checked during the past few years, owing to war conditions, but with peace again restored there should be greater activities in this respect the coming spring than for years. It is not likely that prices will be any lower; in fact the building trades are making a demand for higher wages to ecobme effective May 1st, but whether they will be granted is a question to be determined later. However, whether prices remain at the present level or increase there is an insistent demand for houses, which ought to be met from some source if the community is to continue the progressive spirit of the past. We cannot make progress standing still

THE END OF POISON GAS

The omission of the chemical warfare service from the army appropriation bill finds explanation in the announcement of General March that the War Department is not in favor of the use of poison gas in warfare and that the Peace Congress will be strongly urged to put upon it civilization's permanent ban. Before the signing of the armistice the Red Cross was working toward an international agreement for the abandonment of gas warfare. No doubt Germany would gladly have entered into such an agreement, for she was beginning to be badly beaten at her own devilish game. The Germans were delighted with poison gas only as long as they alone employed it and the Allies had not yet learned how to retaliate. It was quite another matter when the hellish weapon was turned against them.

When the war ended an American gas was ready that would have made the Germans bitterly repent of their unscrupulousness. Fortunately it was not necessary to use it and let us hope it will never be used. Let this barbarity be condemned henceforth. Mere condemnation is not enough, however, for The Hague convention did this in advance. Only the decree of a powerful league of nations can make good such a ban and prevent the same Germany or another from taking advantage of a foe through outlawed means.

FINDING A SUBSTITUTE.

Liquor drinking is intimately associated with recreation and relaxation of men and if men are to be wholly deprived of it, it behooves those who deprive them to bestir themselves to provide the best possible recreation, the innocent indulgence which would take the place of that which is now associated with liquor drinking, says Theodore Diller in The Living Church. Let our friends who advocate teetotalism remember that drinking has been for many centuries associated with social customs in all portions of the world and in all stages of history.

In the midst of a coal famine and a hard winter a year ago an old lady complained of the Bible for saying that "the Lord tempers the wind to the shorn lamb," and like many another person, was astonished when informed that the quotation was not from the Bible but from Sterne. This winter, with plenty of coal and no north wind to speak of, she is doubtless no longer disposed to question the assertion of the author of "Tristram Shandy."

Mr. Bryan was flabbergasted when Mr. Hohenzollern's war dropped like a bambshell on the peace treaties he had induced the small nations to sign and the big nations to endorse in principle. No doubt he feels better now that the general principle of his peace plan is given prominent place in the tentative programme of the League of Nations.

In a safe and comfortable English home young ex-King Manuel naturally looks with reluctance on the attempt to replace the crown of Portugal on his head, and bring him back to a land of revolution and sudden death. Half of thethrones have long been shaky and now most of them suffer from a quick and foundation.

A bill before Congress provides that every discharged soldier may retain his uniform indefinitely and receive a month's extra pay and seven cents mileage home. This will involve an outlay of about $120,000,000 but it will go to those more deserving than some of the recipients of the great sums the Government disburses.

NEW PACKET MAY BEGIN NEXT WEEK

It was reported on the Pittsburg wharf Friday afternoon that the Pittsburgh and Fairmont Transportation Company possibly will be operating a packet on the Monongahela river about February 8. The company is said to be making arrangements for packet service along the river, and agents will look after the business at Pittsburg, Fairmont and other points. The steamer Corker, which formerly plied in the Cincinnati and Louisville trade, has been purchased and is now on the way to Pittsburg to enter the trade. The Corker is practically a new oath, 130 feet long on deck, 30 feet beam and 3.7 feet depth of hold, with a capacity of 100 tons.

MONESSEN CONTINUES ITS VICTORIOUS MARCH

The Monessen High school basket ball team defeated Monongahela Friday evening on the floor of the latter five, by a score of 39 to 27. This is the fifth straight victory of the Monessen team since the opening of the league season and the team is reported going fine. They defeated Homestead on Tuesday by a close score and the return game between these teams is expected to be a thriller.

REGIMENTS TO KEEP THEIR OLD NUMBERS

The war department officials are in favor of the old names and numbers of the regiments of the National Guard of Pennsylvania being retained when the Twenty-eighth Division returns to this state and the Guard is reorganized, according to Adjutant General Deary, who returns on Thursday from Washington, where he held a conference with the chief of the militia bureau. The state has all the authority needed for reorganization and the work will likely begin just as soon as the Division returns from France, which however will not likely be until some time next summer.

This will mean that the old Tenth and the Sixteenth, as well as other regiments in the Guard will be reorganized on their pre-war basis and with their old numbers an arrangement which will meet with the approval of the people.

WHO WILL SUCCEED COL. E. E. ROBBINS

Suggestions are now being made as to a successor to Col. E. E. Robbins, as representative from the Twenty-second Congressional District. Among the names mentioned are those of Julian Huff of Greensburg son of the late Col. George F. Huff who at the time represented the district in Congress. John M. Jamison is also mentioned with a number of others also suggested. Capt. Wade T. Kline of the 110th Infantry, has been suggested as a Democratic nominee. The election will likely be held some time late in February.

LAWS PRINTED IN GERMAN

How the State of Indiana Catered to the Teuton Element in the Fifties and Sixties.

Time was when the Indiana general assembly directed that its laws be printed in German as well as in English—but never more, observes the Indianapolis News.

In 1852 the legislature enacted a statute that its laws passed at that session should be printed in German and one copy distributed to each of the clerks of the judicial circuits. By joint resolutions of the senate and house the session laws of the special session of 1858, the regular session of 1859, the regular session of 1861, the special session of 1861, and the regular session of 1867 were printed in the German language. The revised statutes of 1853 were ordered printed in German.

Mrs. Edward Franklin White of the law editorial department of the Bobbs-Merrill company, believes the printing of the acts in German was no part of the propaganda for "kultur," which has been so exposed of late, but she rather believes that Indiana was making a special bid for settlement by Germans along with other foreigners who were westward bent. She says all sorts of inducements were held out in the fifties and sixties to attract colonization in Indiana and Ohio, as another of the inducements, the lax constitutional provisions (constitution of 1852) for obtaining citizenship or at least the right to vote.

TO IMPROVE LANDING FOR DONORA STEEL WORKS

Important improvements to the landing of the American Steel and Wire Company plant at Donora will be started next week, it has b een announced. A contract has been awarded to the Fieger Dredging Company to begin dredging operations at that place within the next few days. The Steel Corporation controls several miles of river front both above and below Donora and it is not improbable that some very important improvements are contemplated.

The borough council of Donora has adopted an ordinance which provides for a sinking fund to be used in making permanent street improvements and to pay contractors for paving and doing other permanent work in the borough, prior to the collection of the cost and expense for any part thereof from the property owners adjoining or a butting thereon. The borough council can collect a levy up to five mills on the valuation each year if it deems it advisable to do so.

PLENTY OF BOATMEN OFFERING SERVICES

Observers report that more deckhands, firemen and other boate employes have been available the past week or so than for some months past. Boats in local service have no trouble now in keeping their crews full.

Spider's Amazing Strength.

The amazing strength of spiders is shown in a number of well authenticated instances. Thus we have an instance of a half-inch spider catching a two-inch fish. It was of the ground or wolf family. A scientist came upon it struggling with a fish on the edge of a little pool. Its claws were buried in the fish's tail; it had the tail out of the water but the head still remained underneath. The spider struggled to pull the fish up the bank and the fish struggled desperately to draw the spider into the pool. For ten minutes the scientist watched this silent and deadly fight. Then he hurried away for a bottle in which to put the combatants when he captured them. He was gone about half an hour, and on his return the end had come. The fish was dead and the spider was slowly dragging its victim away.—New York Mail.

Water Stored in Plants.

A birch tree standing in the open has been found to give off more than 900 pounds of water per day. A man equipped with two ordinary water pails would have to make 32 trips in order to carry this amount of water. If he had steps up to the top of the tree and could make a round trip every ten minutes he would work more than five hours per day to carry this amount of water. This evaporation is a large factor in raising water to the tops of plants. Recent investigation indicates that this molecular diffusion, which we call transpiration, exerts suction throughout the whole vascular system of the plant—leaves, branches, stem and roots. The contained water seems to be under tension even to the tips of the roots.—George B. Riggs in Science.

The Apple.

The apple is the commonest and yet the most varied and beautiful of fruits. A dish of them is as becoming to the center table in the winter as the vase of flowers was in the summer—a bouquet of Spitzenberghs and Greenings and Northern Spies. A rose when it blooms, an apple is a rose when it ripens. It pleases every sense to which it can be addressed, the touch, the smell, the sight, the taste; and when it falls in the still October days it pleases the ear. It is a call to a banquet. It is a signal that the feast is ready. The bough would fain hold it, but it can now assert its independence; it can now have a career of its own.—Burroughs.

Illiteracy.

The non-Christian world is ignorant and illiterate. It makes up the great bulk of the 80 per cent cent of humanity that can neither read nor write. According to the latest census reports, 94 per cent in India are illiterate. In China an even larger percentage are illiterate. In Latin-America the illiteracy ranges from 40 per cent to over 80 per cent. In Moslem lands Doctor Zwomer estimates that with the exception of Turkey, from 75 to 90 per cent are not literate, while in pagan Africa apart from the influence of the mission schools, the people do not even know that writing has been invented.

Oldtime Smallpox Cure.

To cure smallpox was apparently a very simple matter in the good old times. John of Gaddesden, court doctor of Edward II, has recorded that he got rid of the disease by the simple expedient of wrapping his patient in red cloth. "Let scarlet red be taken," he says, "and let him who is suffering smallpox be entirely wrapped in it or in some other red cloth. I did thus when the son of the illustrious king of England suffered from smallpox. I took care all about his bed should be red, and that cure succeeded very well."—London Chronicle.

To Get Rid of Roaches.

The Bulletin of the Chicago School of Sanitary Instruction has been dealing with domestic pests, the latest issue describing a simple and effective way of ridding premises of roaches. Commercial sodium fluoride mixed in equal parts with flour is dusted over places frequented by the insects, or applied with a dustgun or powder blower. The immediate effect will be noticed that the insects will come out of their hiding places and, after rushing about in a frantic manner for a time, became paralyzed and soon die.

Water-Saving Plant.

In the desert of Sonora, Mexico, there is a plant, the guarequi, which husbands its water supply. The guarequi is a relative of the squash and pumpkin, and inhabits a locality in which practically all the rain falls within a period of six weeks. The base of the stem is swollen to form a hard, woody structure, which in time attains the size of a large squash. It is really nothing more than a vegetable reservoir designed to hoard up the scanty moisture and dole out the precious fluid in time of need.

Officer—"How is this, Murphy? The sergeant complains that you called him names." Private Murphy—"Plaze, surr, I never called him any names at all. All I said was, 'Sergeant, says I, 'some of you ought to be in the menagerie.'"

COMEDIANS OF OLD GREECE

Statues Found in Tombs Show That Funmakers Were Much Like Those Applauded Today.

The finding of some statues in an ancient Greek tomb is an opportunity for comparing the comedians of old times with those of today. The statues are believed to date back to the fourth century B. C. They are quite small—in fact, few of them measure more than six inches in height—but owing to the careful modeling they are still quite lifelike in spite of their extreme age. These little figures represent the funny men of that time, and it is curious to note the resemblance to the oddities of Charlie Chaplin.

One associates flowing robes and stately walk with the Greek actors, but these players are shown wearing short trousers and with an obvious caricature of a stately gait. Nothing was sacred from these comedians; even the greatest men of the day were subjects for their wit, which they carried to extremes. A good example of this is a statue of one of the funny men as Hercules, who was universally admired and venerated in ancient Greece. He is shown wearing his leopard skin lightly over one shoulder, with his finger in his mouth, looking coquettishly round him.

The costumes of these little figures must have been brilliant; there are still faint traces of pink and yellow on the terra-cotta of which the statues were made.

FOOD SUPPLIES IN COMMON

No Eskimo Allowed to Go Hungry While His More Fortunate Brothers Have Plenty.

The arctic explorer, Dr. Donald B. MacMillan, who returned recently after four years spent in the arctic regions, has many interesting things to say about the domestic and social customs of the Eskimo.

All property is owned in common, he tells us. When you enter a village you are not invited to come in. It is your right to enter and, if you are hungry, to help yourself to something to eat. If you happen to visit a house where a poor hunter lives, he says, "Nurket-turange (Nothing to eat)." He does not go hungry, however, because his neighbors have some, and he lives on his neighbors. Everything is divided up that way. If all the villagers are good hunters, their supplies last a long time, but if some are poor hunters, the clever fellow must share with them.

An Eskimo does not eat three meals a day and sleep at regular intervals. He eats when he is hungry, and sleeps when he is sleepy, and he puts it off as long as he can, so that he will enjoy it all the more. He will go around for six hours talking about how hungry he is, and then he will set to work and eat all he can. It is the same way with sleeping. He will go without sleep for 48 hours, and when he cannot keep his eyes open any longer he turns in for a 24-hour snooze.—Youth's Companion.

London's Sea Gull Visitors.

London's winter visitors, the sea gulls have arrived particularly early this year. Never since the hard winter of 1895 first impelled them high up the river, and into hitherto unknown regions of parks and private gardens, have the birds omitted to make their yearly call to the Serpentine and Kensington gardens' round pond. On the river, of course, the gulls, single or in flights, have been regular habitues for many years, perhaps centuries. Feeding the gulls from the bridges is a favorite occupation for many a Londoner, or rather it used to be, for now the feeding of birds is forbidden, on the ground of waste, by the defense of the realm regulations. The gulls will have to shift for themselves this winter, and Londoners' reputation for hospitality will suffer accordingly in the bird world?—Christian Science Monitor.

Beaten To It.

"Germany, confessing her wickedness and protesting her repentance, reminds me of a rascally fortune hunter," said the director of military aeronautics, General Kenly.

"This fortune hunter was describing his pursuit of a Pittsburg heiress.

"'In proposing,' said his listener, 'you ought to have told her, George, that you were unworthy of her. That bait seldom fails.'

"The fortune hunter gave a gloomy laugh.

"'Yes, I was going to tell her that,' he said, 'but she told it to me first.'"

Tough on the Private.

Having heard that our soldiers in France lack soap, a Portland (Me.) girl sent to a sergeant major of the Fifty-fourth a package of soap leaves, and received in due time a letter from the sergeant major in which he expressed surprise that the girl hadn't remembered that he never smoked. He added that he had given the packet to a private who "rolls 'is own," and the private liked to have died of nausea.

Marseilles has at present in the vicinity of 1,000,000 inhabitants, and it is the largest port in France, as well as one of the wealthiest industrial and commercial centers. It is a distributing market for numerous products required in southeastern France and the French African colonies, but in the case of toys Paris controls the trade.
